Back to our Sales Staff

In the last six months I have spent working for Home-Mart, it has been fun watching people find a place they can call their own. Too often in our busy world, life does not give us a chance to catch our breath and enjoy our homes. With the last sixteen years of my life dedicated to sales, I have learned that people value honesty and integrity, which are two qualities I bring to Home-Mart sales.

In our busy lives, hearing the truth is what we all want, and the truth about Home-Mart is what I give to my customers-namely, that our houses are well built and long lasting structures adapted to the individual needs of our buyers. By receiving continual training, I keep myself abreast of the changing climate surrounding housing laws and ordinances, I always give my customers an honest appraisal of their personal ability to purchase a home.

My work here is about helping people find a place to live where they know they are safe and secure. Home-Mart is the place where those dreams become a reality, a place where I can listen and learn from my customers and continually help people find a place they can call "mine".
